The Acting Commissioner of the RSIPF visits FCP to encourage officers on operation amidst political instability

The Acting Commissioner of the Royal Solomon Islands Police Force (RSIPF), Mr. Mathias Lenialu, and Deputy Commissioner (DC) of National Security and Operation Support (DNSOS), Mr. Ian Vaevaso, visited the Forward Command Post (FCP) at the Central Police Station (CPS) this morning (25 March 2026).

The visit is part of encouraging officers involved in the current police operation and giving them a clear sense of direction despite the political instability they face to execute orders effectively.

The RSIPF is a neutral organization, and as police officers, we take our oath of office to perform our duties without favor when we are in situations like this.

We are mandated to maintain law and order in our country in good and bad times. We must ensure safety and peace prevail in all our communities.

As police officers, we should be neutral and must not be involved in politics. We allow our national leaders to deal with the current political situation at their level. We give them the power with our votes, so let them do their mandated business.

DC NSOS Mr. Ian Vaevaso acknowledged officers for the excellent work done so far and encouraged them to continue to perform to that expected standard.
